CHAPTER V
CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

Figurative language is one of language style which has two meaning both literal meaning and connotative meaning. The language present in unusual ways in order to be more interesting for readers. There are five types of figurative languages that have explained by some experts in this research. Those are simile, metaphore, hyperbole, personification and repetition. Figurative language can be found in literary works such as song. Thus the researcher chose song as the source of data in this research.

From the result of this research, the researcher concluded that there are five types of figurative language that found in One Republic’s songs entitle Counting Stars, If I Lose My Self, Feel Again, Light It Up, and Burning Bridges. The following are the five types of figurative language that found in songs: three simile, two metaphore, six hyperbole, three personification and ten repetition. From the data it can be seen that the dominant types of figurative language was repetition, then is followed by hyperbole and simile on the same number, next personification and metaphore also at the same number.

B. Suggestion

Based on the result of this research, the researcher hopes that this research can give contribution and knowledge about linguistic for other.
Especially in language, the researcher expects the readers to understand figurative language in life wherever they found it. Afterward, researcher gives information about types and explanation of figurative language, so that the readers are more interested to know about figurative language. Researcher suggests that readers have to improve and expand their knowledge about it. It is better if they look for another source about figurative language theory especially the theory about the types of figurative language.

Moreover, the researcher has suggestion to other researchers to develop this research into another type of figurative language. The finding of this research can be a reference to guide another researcher that related with this research. Researcher hopes other researcher can increase their ability about language especially in figurative language and apply it in daily life.